

Week 24: Authority

BIG IDEA

If the Bible is reliable, historical, and prophetic, then it carries authority over our lives — so now what? Answer objections like 'it was written by men' (as Jesus is fully man and fully God, the Bible is written by men, inspired by God), aiming for students to appreciate, read, and follow it.

KEY POINTS FROM THE LEADER VIDEO

- This lesson invokes a response: if the Bible is everything we've shown so far, it has authority over our lives — so now what?
- For the storyteller, use a student whose mind has been blown; a peer declaring the Bible authoritative is more powerful than an adult saying it.
- If no student fits, invite a graduate now in college, facing contradictions on campus, to speak about the Bible's authority.
- To the objection 'it was written by men': as Jesus is 100% man and 100% God, the Bible is written by men, inspired by God.
- The Bible isn't merely man's record of who they thought God was; God came in Jesus, so it accurately shows who God really is.
- The aim: students appreciate the Bible more, read it more, and follow it better — equipping them to talk intelligently about it in coming conversations.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. If the Bible really is accurate, historical, and prophetic, what should change in how you live — now what?
2. How would you answer someone who says the Bible can't be God's word because men wrote it?
3. What conclusions have you come to over these four weeks about the Bible's reliability?
4. The Bible is the best-selling yet perhaps least-read book in history; what would help you actually read it more?
